AMPLIFY LIFE, HOME OF CAMP LOTSAFUN – EST. 1980

Some of the best reasons to be a camp counselor may surprise you. Sure, working with people with special needs is rewarding, and spending the seasons outdoors is enticing. But have you ever considered that working at camp is actually good for your career?

If you are a student or someone considering a career in child development, psychology, nursing, physical therapy, speech language therapy, social work/social services, early intervention/developmental intervention, habitation aide, specialized therapy, vocational rehab, special education, coaching, dance, theater, or fine arts, summer camp provides a practical, meaningful experience to build your resume.

Camp counselors are invaluable staff members who spend their whole day with one group of campers. They are role models and mentors who assist and motivate campers whether they are trying to learn a new skill, conquer a challenging task, or they have concerns about an issue or idea. Throughout the day, camp counselors monitor and participate in the group's activities and do everything in their power to make each of their campers' experiences valuable and their summer memorable.

Camp counselors must be fun-loving, patient, and genuinely concerned for the welfare and development of individuals with intellectual and developmental disabilities.

Don't have time to be a counselor? We are always in need of social stewards. Volunteers who come into our office and devote time to helping us with camp preparation and general tasks and projects associated with our business. We also have rewarding opportunities to assist with our local day programs and you'll spend the day with our awesome campers!
